A Virtual Welcome

Well, who saw that coming? 2020 was supposed to be many things to many people. Instead, 2020 was a year full of challenges: the most difficult many have had to contend with in their personal and professional lives.

For us, it was supposed to be the year that we showed off our beautiful island state, wowed you with our amazing food and wine, and threw some high-end education in there too. We are so disappointed that we can't welcome you down to Hobart at this time, and all get together as we had planned.

Still, we've worked hard on a relevant and engaging program, and so it is our pleasure to welcome you to RANZCOG's Virtual Annual Scientific Meeting for 2021. A change from the usual layout, this format will enable those from Christchurch in the east, to Perth in the west, (and everyone in between!) to join in at sociable time and live stream with us from wherever you may be.

Our themes largely remain the same, though you could argue that in hindsight, 20:20 vision is something many of us wish we had had at this same time last year so we could prepare for what was coming our way. And so we propose a new vision for the future, one in which we build on the last ASM, and look ahead to the challenges we all face as our specialty continues to evolve – especially in these changing, and somewhat uncertain times. Our speakers have graciously recommitted to present to you the latest updates, controversies, and future strategies for this current age we live and practice in. At the forefront of our minds is how we've all had to adapt to new social distancing rules and use digital platforms to deliver medical care, and of course, though somewhat in the shadow of this recent pandemic, the climate emergency and its effect on women's health. The program addresses gender equity issues on a local and global scale, and as opportunities arise for women in alternative fields, what this means in a practical sense. We also bring to you the latest in translational research and examine the ongoing dilemma of how to ensure appropriate surgical exposure for our trainees – so many of these topics are more relevant now than ever.

Despite the health and economic consequences of COVID-19, 2020 wasn't all bad. After all, it recently saw a Tasmanian make the podium at the Tour de France (the second Australian ever to do so), and the fact that this race even went ahead shows just how far we've come and how resilient we humans can be. Although we're far apart, there's a new sense of community, and caring for your neighbours through this crisis, living locally, and digitally checking in with friends and family, which has brought us all together. Hobart is delightful at any time of the year, and so although we can't be together in person, know that we will still be here waiting for you when travel restrictions allow, and you can take the opportunity to venture down, breathe in some of our fresh air, unplug, and see a bit of our beautiful state.

Until then, keep well and look after yourselves.

Keynote Speakers

Prof Lesley Regan

Prof Lesley Regan was the 30th President of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG); only the second woman to ever hold this role and the first in 64 years.

Head of Obstetrics and Gynaecology at St Mary's Hospital campus, Imperial College London, Prof Regan is also director of Women's Health Research Centre and co-director of the UK Pregnancy Baby Bio Bank. Prof Regan is the Department of Metabolism, Digestion and Reproduction co-chair of the People and Culture Committee (Athena SWAN).

She is also a member of the RCOG Council and international Executive Board, Secretary General of the international Federation of Gynaecology and Obstetrics (FIGO) and Chair of CHARM – the Charity for Research into Miscarriage. She is also PI for the Recurrent Miscarriage Tissue Bank.

Having graduated from the Royal Free Hospital School of Medicine, London, in 1980 Lesley pursued her career at Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, where she first became enthused by clinical and laboratory research, completing an MD on miscarriage.

Prof Regan combines her clinical and research work on recurrent miscarriage and uterine fibroids with a passion for communicating to the wider public, writing two successful books on miscarriage and pregnancy for the general reader and presenting a series of eight BBC 'Horizon' documentaries. In 2015 she received an Honorary Fellowship of the American College and a Doctorate of Science from University College London for her contribution to women's health.

A/Prof Todd Ponsky

A/Prof Todd Ponsky is currently a professor of surgery at the University of Cincinnati and director of Clinical Growth and Transformation at Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center. He is currently the president-elect of the international Pediatric Endosurgery Group (IPEG), Chair of the American College of Surgeons Committee on Telementoring, and holds leadership positions in APSA and SAGES.

A/Prof Ponsky was the first to perform and report single port surgery in children and modernised the methods of the laparoscopic paediatric hernia repair. He is involved in both outcomes and animal research with a focus on inguinal hernia physiology, surgical telementoring, endoscopic repair techniques for pure oesophageal atresia, and innovations in education. He founded GlobalcastMD and Stay Current in Surgery, both of which serve to modernise the way we teach and learn surgery.

He has published over 100 manuscripts, edited one textbook, and authored over 20 book chapters. He has directed over 50 American and international courses and has given over 160 visiting lectureships. He is the associate editor for the Journal of Pediatric Surgery, and serves on three editorial boards.

Keynote Speakers

Dr Bruce Bekkar

Dr Bruce Bekkar, M.D. is a women's health physician, author, and educator who has been engaged with the climate crisis since 2007.

As a full-time activist since 2013, he has worked with numerous local and national United States organizations, including the Climate Reality Project, the American Lung Association, Environment America, and ecoAmerica's Climate for Health Ambassadors Advisory Committee.

A writer and frequent speaker on climate and health, Dr Bekkar has addressed the California State Senate Environment Committee, the American Meteorological Society, Genentech, Citizens Climate Lobby and the Sierra Club.

He recently shared original research on the risks to pregnancy in the U.S. at national meetings of the American Public Health Association and the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr Sarah Stock

Dr Sarah Stock is a Wellcome Trust Clinical Career Development Fellow at the Usher Institute at the University of Edinburgh; and a Consultant and Subspecialist in Maternal and Fetal Medicine at the Simpson Centre for Reproductive Health at the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh. She received her medical degree from Manchester University Medical School and has a PhD from the University of Edinburgh. Her specialist and subspecialist clinical training was undertaken in Edinburgh, with periods in Glasgow, London and Australia.

Her research focuses on preterm birth and how this can affect the long-term health of the child, as well as how to diagnose fetal inflammation, and how to optimise treatments for this issue. Her research into this leverages population health data to explore the effect of environment on pregnancy and the effect of antenatal treatments on perinatal and childhood outcomes.

She now leads data-driven research into pregnancy treatments, including the international Co_OPT collaboration, which aims to establish the effects of inappropriately timed antenatal corticosteroids in babies and children. Dr Stock is also the Chief investigator for UK large multicentre observational cohort studies including QUIDS (Quantitative Fibronectin to help Decision-Making in Women with Symptoms of Preterm Labour) and CHOICE (Cervical ripening at home or in-hospital) studies.

Memorial Oration Speakers

Ian MacDonald
Memorial Oration

Dr Penny Blomfield

Dr Penny Blomfield specialises in the care of women who are diagnosed with cancer of the ovary, fallopian tube, uterus, cervix and vulva and vagina. She is an advanced laparoscopic pelvic surgeon and is frequently involved with the care of women who require more challenging benign pelvic surgery. She has also had a long interest and expertise in colposcopy of the female genital tract.

Penny carried out her basic medical training and subsequent specialist certification in Obstetrics and Gynaecology in the UK. She emigrated to Australia in 1994 following her marriage to an Australian. She then completed a fellowship in Gynaecological Oncology at the Mercy Hospital for Women in Melbourne for 2 years, and a further one year in Halifax Novascotia, Canada, and achieved her subspecialist certificate in Gynaecological Oncology.

She initially worked as a Gynaecological Oncologist at the Mercy Hospital for Women in Melbourne and moved to the Royal Hobart Hospital in Tasmania in 2000.

Penny was full time director of the Tasmanian state-wide service of Gynaecological Oncology from 2000–2016.

Penny was appointed Clinical Associate Professor to the University of Tasmania in 2007. She has been involved in clinical research as a member of Australian and New Zealand Gynaecological Oncology Clinical Trials Group (ANZCOG) since the inception in 2000. She sat on the research advisory committee (RAC) for ANZCOG for over 12 years. She has been a member of the Committee of Management of the Australian Society for Colposcopy and Cervical Pathology (ASCCP) since 2009 and was secretary of the society from 2013–2015. She is presently Chair of the Australian Society of Gynaecological Oncologists (ASGO).

Ella Macknight
Memorial Lecture

Dr Kirsten Palmer

Dr Kirsten Palmer (BBiomed Sci, MBBS (Hons), PhD, FRANZCOG) is an obstetrician specialising in maternal fetal medicine at Monash Health, Victoria, Australia.

She is also a senior obstetric advisor for the Victorian consultative council of obstetric and paediatric morbidity and mortality and senior research fellow in the department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology at Monash University, where she leads the maternal and perinatal medicine translational research group.

Her research, having a particular interest in disorders of placentation, such as pre-eclampsia and fetal growth restriction, seeks to improve the understanding of disease pathophysiology, as well as to enhance clinical outcomes through translating promising new therapeutics into the clinical setting.

She has extensive national and international collaborators with whom she works and is currently leading clinical trials to optimise outcomes for babies affected by fetal growth restriction and improve postpartum haemorrhage prevention.
